Academic Support

The Center for Student Success offers students the resources they need to be academically successful. For personal tutoring, both online and in-person, the center offers one-on-one tutoring, the Communications Resource Center, the Math Learning Center and eTutoring. For students with disabilities, Student Life-Disability Services (SL-DS) provides free programs and services designed to give students full access to college life.

Workforce Development Innovation Center

The Workforce Development Innovation Center provides businesses and individuals customized job training and education. Both for-credit and not-for-credit options are available. For more information, visit cotc.edu/wdic.

Dual Admission

Dual admission allows students to be enrolled both at COTC and another college or university at the same time. This allows students to take advantage of programs and services such as library privileges, advising and academic support at both institutions, while seamlessly earning both an associate degree and a bachelor's degree.

College Credit Plus (CCP)

CCP is a state initiative to help middle and high school students earn college credit. COTC offers 15- and 30-credit-hour pathways leading to a degree or certificate. It is free for students.

College Tech Prep

COTC is a member of the Central Region Tech Prep program, which allows high school juniors and seniors to earn college credits and prepare for successful careers while enrolled in high school.

Concurrent Enrollment Options

This program allows students in grades 9-12 to enroll in college courses at a reduced cost.

*Enrollment and academic statistics are current as of autumn semester 2017.

Including all degree options and majors.

Four Campus Locations

Each COTC campus has its own Gateway for student services as well as tutoring, computer labs and library resources. Students may take general education courses at all campuses. Select technical courses and some certificate and degree programs are available at each extended campus.

Newark Campus

The Newark campus is COTC's largest campus in both physical size and enrollment. It has seven academic buildings on a 200-acre campus. Here you'll find the John L. and Christine Warner Library and Student Center, which features a cafeteria, library and bookstore and the Adena Recreation Center, a fitness and wellness facility that is free to students.
